INTRODUCTION

Over the past decade, the tattoo and permanent makeup industry have experienced exponential growth, with tattoos becoming increasingly accepted and micropigmentation practices soaring in popularity and profitability. Permanent makeup, once considered truly permanent, is now subject to removal, albeit to varying degrees of success. For those unwilling to compromise on quality and seeking the most effective solution, IQ Pigment Remover stands as the premier choice in the market. Specifically tailored for micropigmentation specialists (PMU) and tattoo artists, IQ Pigment Remover delivers unrivaled results.

IQ HISTORY

In 2000, Inga Babitskaya, a visionary founder, recognized the limitations of traditional laser removal methods and embarked on a quest for a superior alternative. Her dedication led to the development of the first removing solution in 2001. Collaborating with Yevgenia Aytas, a renowned micropigmentation artist with a Master-level specialization in pigmentology, IQ Pigment Remover was born. Through years of meticulous testing and refinement, the IQ Intelligent Pigment Remover formula was perfected, setting a new standard in the industry.

We are dedicated to advancing the field of tattoo and PMU removal, continuously developing new products and techniques to meet the evolving needs of our clients. HOW DOES IT WORK?

IQ Pigment Remover suspension consists of alkaline earth oxides and transit metals, mixed according to our unique formula. Because of the similar properties, the metal oxides in the IQ Pigment Remover are very attracted to tattoo and PMU pigments.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT!

When the IQ Pigment Remover comes in touch with the tattoo ink, the pigments are gradually absorbed by the emulsion and pushed to the skin surface.

LASER VS IQ PIGMENT REMOVER

When using a laser, white based pigments (Titanium Dioxide) is unfortunately not removed, because the laser does not see these white molecules. The color and the property of the pigment will change instead (color inversion). IQ Pigment Remover works inland , you will hget the best results.
